BENNINGTON, VERMONT

MARGARET BREARD HAWKS, Director

GLADIOLI -- SPRING 1931

EXPLANATORY NOTE

For two reasons we are sending out to our customers these unpretentious lists instead of our usual more elaborate catalogue. The first being a wish to offer them the best value possible for the least money and our saving in catalogues is their saving in the price they must pay for their bulbs. By eliminating our illustrations, testimonials from pleased customers, and curtailing the more detailed descriptions, we are able to offer all the other matter of importance, and a long list of the finest varieties of Gladiolus in the world at a minimum cost to the customer. Secondly, the long serious illness of our Director, Margaret Breard Hawks, prevented the early distribution of a more complete catalogue, and it would now require too long a time to prepare such a booklet, in time to reach our customers for their buying season.

We feel that our two reasons will be entirely acceptable to our customers and that thereby they will derive a material profit in their purchases.

Elmwood Terrace Gardens

General Terms and Suggestions

TWELVE bulbs will be sent for the price of ten.

Two half size bulbs blooming size will be sent for price of one large one.

One package bulblets varying in number according to scarcity of variety will be sent for price of one large bulb of that variety.

All orders for bulbs per each, or dozen rate, and bulblets will be sent prepaid.

One hundred bulbs of a kind will be sent for seven times the dozen price. Express charges collect.

If you do not have any particular choice and will leave the selection to us, we will send you 50% extra in bulbs, priced per each all correctly labeled. Not less than $2.00 order accepted for this.

In mixtures we supply only high class varieties and sizes are equal to those listed under name.

Our Elmwood Terrace Special Mixture at $5.00 per 100 has made friends all over the United States.

Our De Luxe Mixture made up from filing trays with at least 30 different varieties of more recent introduction, including many ruffled ones, selling at $10.00 per 100, is worth three to five times the amount if the bulbs were selected singly under label.

Our Rainbow Primulinus Mixture including all colors of the rainbow is wonderful for cut flowers for the house or any purpose. Only $3.00 per 100.

Our Butterfly Primulinus Mixture is composed of more recent introductions and includes a predominance of the Grandflor or extra large flowering type. This is offered at $7.00 per 100 and you will be astonished at their beauty.

Fifty bulbs of any of the above mixtures will be sent for one-half the 100 price.

Discounts: 5% off on orders of $2.00 to $5.00

10% off on orders of $5.00 to $10.00

15% off on orders of $10.00 to $25.00

Early Orders are urged for the reason that many of the choicest varieties are limited in quantity and are soon exhausted. Also we have more time before the spring rush to give careful attention to each item.

You will find in parenthesis after the name of each variety the name of the originator (K. means Kunder), (Dec. means Decorah Gardens), etc., the first number indicates the approximate number of days required after planting the bulbs before you can expect the bloom. The second number means that this variety has had expert ratings given it and the number is that percentage of 100 perfection.

About sizes. If you want the very finest, largest blooms for immediate effect, or for exhibition purposes, you must have the large size bulbs. The medium sizes will all flower the first year and give nice blooms for your vases and you will harvest No. 1 size bulbs in the fall for next year's exhibition blooms.

For those who can't afford to buy bulbs in the expensive varieties and are willing to wait a year or two, the bulblets afford a cheap opportunity. Bulblets of most varieties grow readily, but some require more expert treatment and greater patience and care, and because of this as well as other uncertainties, we do not replace bulblets unless they are proven to be untrue to name.

We strongly urge you to join the American Gladiolus Society and get the benefit of its official organ, "The Gladiolus Review," published monthly. Annual dues $2.00, which you may send to us and we will see that you are properly enrolled.

Cultural Suggestions

WHEN planting the bulbs, select a spot with full exposure to the sun but sheltered from heavy winds.

The best soil is sandy loam. If you must use lighter soil, plant the bulbs about five inches deep and provide water and fertilizer to keep them well nourished. If the soil is heavy clay, spade very deeply, incorporating a generous supply of coarse sand or coal ashes and leafmould which will lighten the soil and prevent it from packing and becoming water-soaked after rains and watering.

If your soil is sandy loam, you may use old, well-rotted stable manure which should be thoroughly mixed into the soil. A high grade potato fertilizer with an equal amount of fine bone meal serves as an excellent aid to superior growth.

After the spading and mixing has been accomplished, lay off about four inches of the soil from the top of the bed and place your bulbs four inches apart in rows eight inches apart. Push them firmly into the soil and place the soil solidly around them. This is of great assistance in making them stand up straight. Then cover with the soil that has been removed, making a depth of four inches above the bulbs.

Keep the bed raked and cultivated even before the bulbs come through and continue to cultivate all through the season.

After watering or heavy rainfalls, it is imperative that you allow no soil crust to form.

When the plants are nearly ready to bloom, an application of sheep fertilizer applied between the rows, not too near the plants, and then worked into the surface about one and one-half inches deep will be of aid in producing the largest size blooms.

Discontinue watering when plants begin to ripen but do not discontinue shallow cultivation.

Cut the spikes when the first flowers open and let them bloom in the house. Slice these cut stems diagonally across the bottoms each morning, pick off the wilted blooms and provide fresh water. Four leaves should always be left on the plant to properly mature the bulbs for the next season. Dig the bulbs before plants are too ripe and cut off tops close to bulbs. Dry well in heat and sunshine and cure thoroughly indoors for a few weeks. Then store in cool dry cellar.

For Purposes of Decoration

AS TO arrangement, if your glads are to be used primarily as cut flowers for your own home, bear in mind the colors most pleasing with your furnishings.

Provide suitable containers. Many of the exceedingly long stemmed varieties look best in tall floor baskets or vases, while the short stemmed varieties look well in shorter containers. For large low effects it is necessary to use a support of some kind. When the container used is clear glass, a large heavy glass base with perforation is inconspicuous. The tips of stems that have served their purpose in tall containers may be taken off and used most effectively in flat bowls or baskets for table decorations, using foliage or other smaller flowers to give an air of daintiness and contrast of form and color.

Grow a few clumps of "Baby's Breath," either the perennial or annual sorts or both, a few plants of ferns, asparagus, Delphinium, Archillea, Candy Tuft, etc. and you will have some of the most valuable material at hand for dressing up or embellishing your vases of glads.

For very artistic effects in blended colors use the graceful Primulini. They are less self assertive than the exhibition type of glads and blend harmoniously both in color and form with other flowers. The exhibition type is often seen to best advantage when perhaps a single stem with some graceful foliage is placed in a slender vase. Three stems or five stems make a wonderful showing. Do not try to use too many of this large type. Use odd numbers of stems rather than even numbers as the odd numbers conform better to a symmetrical, well balanced arrangement. Be careful also that the stems do not cross each other from base to tip.

Practice making your floral arrangements when you are at leisure—try them in different combinations—various containers, till you get the very best effect, then whenever you are pressed for time and your flowers must be arranged hurriedly, you will know in advance just what to cut, the best container to use and the most becoming and artistic arrangement. We would strongly urge you to visit any of the big shows held nearby and familiarize yourself with the varieties that are the consistent prize winners. Observe the way the entry is staged so you will be able to compete successfully yourself when opportunity affords.

Usually, or quite often, three blooms of a kind are called for, such as three light pink, three pure white without blotches or markings, three solid red, three pink with markings of other colors, etc. To have three perfect blooms of a kind all out at once it is necessary to grow at least twice or three times that many. It is also more satisfactory to grow fewer varieties so as to have more of a kind. Your garden looks less "spotty" and you have better opportunity for more beautiful floral arrangements.
